Trade Secrets

- A trade secret is something that offers an advantage in business if it keep as a secret.
- A trade secret can be a client list, the formula for a product, etc.
- A trade secret does not have to be patentable, but it must be capable of being maintained.
- For instance, a client list can be protected by computer password, and the formula can be safeguarded by disclosing it to a limited number of people.
- Trade secrets are not registered with any government or other agency.
